Recessed Template for circles –You either need a dedicated quilling template board or a plastic ruler/template with several different sized circles.

The dedicated board for quilling-contains multiple circles of the same size which are slightly recessed so that the coils will expand to the limits of the circle when placed inside. There are usually 4-6 of each diameter. These are nice for sizing the coils and pinning them in place while glue dries. Amazon carries some of the Quilled Creations products, so if you have Amazon Prime, you can eliminate the shipping charge. A quilling board with multiple shapes is less useful than multiple circles of each size.

Alternatively, you can use a small plastic template which has one circle of each size. The coil can be sized accurately and then removed for gluing. This is the less expensive option.
